Questions about these workshops should be directed to Anne Angermeyr at annea@montana.edu or 994-7136.

Look for two workshops in April from The Center for Faculty Excellence: one of our Teaching and Learning with Technology Faculty Fellows will share experiences in applying technology in the large classroom; and three MSU professionals will discuss how to recognize and reach out to students in need.

Flips and Flops: Technology's Role in the Large Classroom

Thursday, Apr. 3, 12:00-1:00 p.m., SUB 236

Join Chris Bahn, one of the Center for Faculty Excellence's 2014 Teaching and Learning with Technology Faculty Fellows, for a presentation on his experiences (some good, some bad) in applying technology in a large classroom environment. Examples include lecture capture with Camtasia Relay and the use of smart pens for chemical notation and descriptions. Chris will highlight successful experiences as well as discuss episodes that were less than satisfactory.

Presenter: Chris Bahn is a teaching professor in the MSU Department of Chemistry & Biochemistry.

This will be a brown-bag session. No registration is required.

Responding to the Safety and Welfare Needs of Students

Tuesday, Apr. 8, 11:45 a.m.-1:00 p.m., SUB 233

What is the response of the University if a student demonstrates that they are a danger to themselves or another? Who treats the student and what is their thought process as they help make decisions that impact the safety of the individual and the larger campus community? How can faculty and staff recognize a student in need and to whom should they refer the student for help?

Join three professionals for an interactive panel discussion regarding crisis response in the face of the rising suicide rate and an increased need to prevent campus violence. The panel will discuss various scenarios that exist on university campuses today in an attempt to demonstrate MSU's response to student safety and welfare and increase awareness regarding how to recognize and reach out to students in need.

Panelists: Aaron Grusonik, Associate Dean of Students and Director of Student Welfare; Pat Donahoe, Director of Counseling & Psychological Services; and Sam Mitchell, M.D., Student Health Service.

Lunch will be served at 11:45 a.m. and the session will begin at 12:00 noon. This session will be recorded and posted at the Center for Faculty Excellence events webpage.

Registration is required by 5:00 p.m., Monday, Apr. 7; to register, go to <https://www.surveymonkey.com/s/M8LMJW3>
