Subject: May Provost Message -- Join Us this Friday to Celebrate Spring Commencement

Office of the Provost

Dear Faculty,

Commencement is a celebration of achievement, transformation and the lasting impact of education. This Friday, May 9, we will confer nearly 2,500 degrees to students whose journeys have been transformed by their experiences at Montana State University. Their accomplishments reflect years of hard work and are a testament to the guidance, mentorship and teaching you provided.

Your presence at Commencement means more than you may realize. For our graduates, seeing the faculty who believed in them and helped them grow makes the day all the more meaningful. I hope you'll join us in celebrating this important milestone. No RSVP is required, and details about the ceremony—including timing, location, and regalia—can be found here.

In addition to the main ceremony, each College is hosting its own graduation celebration. These gatherings are a special opportunity to recognize our graduates' accomplishments in a more personal setting and to connect with their families, who are always eager to meet the faculty who made such a difference.

Thank you for the care and dedication you show our students and each other. Your work defines the Montana State experience, and because of you, our graduates leave MSU with an intellectual foundation and skills to make a lasting impact.

Wishing you a strong finish to the Spring 2025 semester and a restful, rewarding summer.

Warm regards,
